Vindolanda was a Roman auxiliary fort (castrum) just south of Hadrian's Wall in northern England, which it originally pre-dated.
Archaeological excavations of the site show it was under Roman occupation from roughly 85 AD to 370 AD.

Vindolanda is one of Europe's most important Roman archaeological sites. It is situated on the Stanegate Road, one mile south of Hadrian's Wall and is managed and owned by The Vindolanda Charitable Trust. The site itself comprises nine forts built on top of each other.

Vindolanda was not constantly occupied during the Roman period. Instead, forts were demolished and rebuilt according to the needs of the different cohorts occupying the site. At least nine different forts were built there. At times Vindolanda was a huge site, well-equipped with baths, luxurious quarters for its highest-ranked officers and supported by a civilian settlement outside the fort's ...

Having visited Vindolanda and Hadrian's Wall, I thought I would give the novel a go, albeit that it isn't of my favourite genre. A good story line, and much impressive knowledge of Roman military matters. Remembering all the characters names and relationships was a little heavy going. But overall a good read.
